Fall Refused to Sell U. S. Oil to Ship Board

FALL THEN SOLD
FUEL TO SINCLAIR
CLAIMS WITNESS

Refusal of Former Secretary of Interior To Sell Oil Cost Board Millions in Price.

OFFICIAL WAS DEAF
TO ALL ARGUMENTS

Testimony Given by Joseph E. Sheedy Bares Fresh Angle to Teapot Dome Scandal.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, May 28.—Officers of the fleet corporation told the house committee investigating the shipping board today that Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior in July, 1922, had refused to renew a contract with the board for purchase of government royalty oil in Montana and Wyoming, thereby forcing it to obtain its oil elsewhere, entailing a loss of millions of dollars.

The testimony was given by Joseph E. Sheedy, vice-president, and M. B. Brown, manager of purchases and supplies of the fleet corporation, in response to questions. The latter declared that "every argument at the board's command" was brought to bear upon Mr. Fall, who, subsequently, committee members brought out, entered into a contract with the Sinclair interests for purchase of the oil.

Payne Signed Contract.
The contract, at the time Fall refused to renew it, Bowen testified, had been enforced since May 1920, when it was entered into through negotiation with the interior department when John Barton Payne was secretary.

Approximately $5,800,000 was saved by the board, during the life of the contract, Bowen said. In response to questions by Representative Linberger, republican, California, Mr. Sheedy, who occasionally prompted the witness with the committee's permission, estimated a further saving of about $3,000,000 a year would have accrued to the board, had the contract been continued.

Sinclair Men Sat In.
Pressed for the reasons that guided Fall in declining to extend the contract, Bowen said that the former interior secretary told him he desired to enter into a contract with "some one other than the one company which was operating in the Salt Creek field, which was the Midwest Refining Company."

The witness admitted, however, upon further questioning, that representatives of Sinclair were constantly on hand during the negotiations between board officials and Fall for the contract extension. The secretary told him, Bowen said, as the oil was of such a high grade he wanted to obtain a price above the prevailing market quotation.

Offered Mexican Oil.
The contract later awarded Sinclair, it was testified, called for a price about 25c higher than the market price. Both Sheedy and Bowen, however, contended the government eventually suffered through this contract because the price paid by Sinclair did not "come near" making up the losses sustained by the board in losing its contract.

Another feature of the committee's session today was the production, for the first time, of a proposal by the Sinclair Oil Company in May, 1920, to furnish the board its entire fuel needs of 500,000 barrels a year over a period of five years at $1.18 a barrel to be delivered at Mexican loading stations.

Contract Rejected.
The proposed contract, which was rejected, Bowen said, would have obligated the government to furnish all the tankers necessary to transport the oil to points of final consumption and involved a loan of $27,000,000 to the company by the board for the construction and acquiring of storage tanks and other facilities, then needed. The loan would have been covered by a government mortgage on the facilities.

The contract for oil at that time, he added, was let to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for from $2.30 a barrel, delivered at New York, to $2.90, delivered at Norfolk.

Toll of Killed and Injured Mounts as Reports Trickle in Over Telephone Lines.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Okla. City, Okla., May 28.—Thirteen persons are known to have been killed and many were injured by a tornado that struck Wetumka, in Hughes county, Oklahoma, late today, according to telephone advices here tonight.

The tornado approached from the southwest and swept through the southern fringe of the town, whose population has been swelled recently by all activities in the surrounding territory.

Physicians rushed to Wetumka from Weleetka and Hollenville.

Muskogee, Okla., May 28.—One man was reported killed and several injured in a tornado which swept through Warner, Muskogee county, late today.

2 FAMILIES OF 8 KILLED IN STORM.
Birmingham, Ala., May 28.—Alabama's death toll in the tornado of Tuesday was placed at 21 today with belated reports that Mrs. J. L. Coffield was killed 12 miles west of Hamilton, Ala., in Marion county, when a home was demolished. Her husband, son, Prine Coffield and grandson, W. C. Coffield, were seriously injured.

Sections swept by the storm were busy today burying the dead and caring for those injured and rendered homeless. This was especially true near Empire in Walker county which bore the brunt of the tornado and where eight members of one family were killed in the crash of their home.

TWO NEAR-DEATH
IN AUTO MISHAPS

Wednesday's Toll of Injured Reaches 8; 39 Fined in Police Court; 49 New Cases Made.

Eight persons were injured, two probably fatally, in two automobile accidents Wednesday, the list of victims including a woman and two small children. Those hurt are J. L. Elliott, 44, of 217 Fox street, and C. C. Barfield, both of whom are thought to have suffered fractured skulls; Mrs. Elliott, whose injuries consist of a broken left arm and severe lacerations about the hand and body; her two small children, Ward, 3, and Mary, 5, both of whom were badly shaken up and bruised; Hinton Barfield, son of C. C. Barfield, who received only slight injuries; Ralph Field, of 45 South Mayson avenue, and A. J. Cook, of East Lake.

There was no let-up in the fight against traffic law violators Wednesday, police reporting 49 new cases made, while 39 drivers were found guilty in recorder's court and paid fines aggregating $765. Seventeen arrests were made during the day on charges of violating traffic ordinances, 10 for speeding, 13 for reckless driving, two for reckless driving of a street car, and one for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Only two of the 41 cases tried in recorder's court for alleged violations of traffic rules were dismissed, 19 drivers being fined for breaking traffic ordinances, 14 for speeding, and six for reckless driving.

Max Davenport, 16, of Norcross, Ga., and W. D. Thompson, of 5 Bishop street, in addition to being assessed fines of $25 and costs on charges of reckless driving, were bound over to the state court, charged with assaulting.

STATE COMMITTEE
VOTES TO RETURN TO OLD SYSTEM

County Executive Committees Will Name Delegates To State Convention This Fall.

SEPTEMBER 10 DATE SET FOR STATE PRIMARY

All Entries Must Be Filed by June 21—Rules for State Election Promulgated.

By practically unanimous vote, the state democratic executive committee, meeting at the Kimball house Wednesday, decided to return, for this fall's political campaign, to the old system of county autonomy in the selection of delegates to the state convention to name a governor and other statehouse officials.

Under the rules adopted Wednesday, the selection of each county's delegates, who shall number twice as many as that county's representation in the statehouse of representatives, is left entirely in the hands of the county executive committee, with the proviso that those selected shall be from among the friends of the successful candidate in that county for the governorship, and shall have supported and voted for him in his race.

These rules for the selection of delegates differ from those adopted in the presidential preference primaries this spring, when it is claimed, delegates to the convention in Atlanta were named by a small group of the headquarters workers for William G. McAdoo, acting on credentials given them by Mr. McAdoo himself. This was in line with the rules adopted for that primary, which specified that the winning candidate should name all delegates to the state convention himself.

June 21 was set as the date for closing of entries in the various races this year. The primaries will be held September 10, as provided by the Niell primary law.

A resolution also was passed, instructing counties, which held primaries for the election of state senators.

JAPAN FORWARDS
'SOLEMN PROTEST'

Deep Regret at Exclusion Provision of New Immigration Law Is Expressed in Official Statement.

Tokio, May 28.—After deliberate consideration which reflected the seriousness with which they regard the issue, officials of the Japanese government are now prepared to protest formally to the United States against exclusion of Japanese from American territory.

After the cabinet had decided Wednesday to dispatch an official protest to Washington, the foreign office issued a statement reviewing the provisions of the immigration law which deal with exclusion, and voicing deep regret the measure had been passed despite objections from Japan.

The action of the government is approved in the press and by the general public. Japanese view the situation as an issue deeply involving their national interests and place great importance on the government's remonstrance.

'Solemn Protest' Forwarded.
In revealing the government decision, the foreign office announced that a "solemn protest" was being forwarded to Washington through Ambassador Hanihara.

The temper of the more important newspapers here is comparatively moderate, but expressions of editorial opinion show how strongly Japan disapproves of exclusion.

An editorial in The Asahi calls for a far-reaching, far-sighted Japanese policy toward the United States, instead of an opportunistic policy. "We must patiently wait for Americans calmly to reconsider their decision," The Jiji says.

Tomb of Wilson Is Shrine
TEARS NOT UNCOMMON ON CHEEKS OF PILGRIMS
Where Many Pay Homage

BY LYLE C. WILSON.

Washington, May 28.—In four short months Woodrow Wilson's resting place has become a national shrine. Every day nearly 700 persons make their pilgrimage to the wooded hill-top above the city and bend their heads for a silent moment in the little vaulted chapel where the dead war president rests.

Already nearly 100,000 have gazed upon the plain marble slab which marks the burial crypt of Bethlehem chapel. Almost as many come to this shrine for the last dead president as go to the great shaft that commemorates the first president.

From a straggling, half curious dozen visitors who came each day to see the national cathedral before the former president was buried there, the number has swelled to nearly 700 a day. The tide of mourners set in on the February afternoon following the burial ceremony in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Nativity and has continued without an ebb.

Nearly 100,000 persons are estimated to have visited America's newest shrine. By the first anniversary of Wilson's death the number will be well above 250,000, within a few thousands of the number who visited the Washington monument last year.

"They are just plain, ordinary people from all parts of the United States," Thomas H. Watson, head verger of the cathedral said.

"Some of them are poorly dressed but persons of apparently great wealth often come. Really poor persons rarely are among the visitors.

Mrs. Wilson usually visits the chapel twice a week. Frequently she participates in the regular afternoon service but as often as not she comes during the morning when fewer persons are likely to be present. Always she brings flowers.

Tears are not uncommon about the unmarked slab in the chapel floor beneath which lies Wilson's body. To the right of it is a simple memorial plaque bearing the name: "Woodrow Wilson" and the years of his birth and death.

Patriotic and other societies often come to the cathedral officially to mark their sorrow but the most touching incidents are not to be found in these set pilgrimages.

Ex-service men are prominent among those who come to the tomb of the late commander-in-chief.

Watson told how a small group of these stood recently before the lacquered palm fronds which form a background to the memorial plaque and wept silently for several minutes.

Such scenes often occur at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

Politicians and the men who helped Wilson guide the country through the war years are infrequent visitors at his grave.

World war veterans and members of the American legion will visit Bethlehem chapel Thursday and place a wreath of poppies on the grave of their dead chief as a Memorial day tribute.

Wisconsin Senator Announces Independent Movement To Compel Clean-Up.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, May 28.—Uneasiness of republican and democratic party managers has been materially aggravated by the announcement of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, that an independent, progressive movement will be launched unless the two old parties clean up. The appearance of a La Follette movement in the coming campaign would upset a good many calculations and have a far-reaching effect, the full scope of which cannot be foreseen at this time.

Senator La Follette, who is resting at Atlantic City, has not said whether he would consent to become an independent candidate, but most party leaders here assume that if any independent movement of national scope is promoted, the Wisconsin senator will be its leader, because his ability and prestige are universally admitted to be unequalled in the progressive group.

Many efforts have been made by old party managers to find out what La Follette intended to do, but the first authentic statement of his attitude appeared in a letter written to an old friend, Herman L. Ekern, attorney general of Wisconsin, in which he repudiated the communist flavor in the farmer-labor-progressive convention to be held at St. Paul, June 17. He refused to support this convention and advised his friends to withdraw from it because communists have been admitted as delegates.

"Communists are antagonistic to the progressive cause and their only purpose is to bring about the destruction of the country," he wrote.

Mr. Davis, the retiring president, in presenting his report, said 224 new members had been accepted during the past year and that the present membership was 560. Five thousand tourists have been furnished with road information during the year, and important work in bringing about street repairing and the furnishing of automobiles for convention visitors has been done locally.

HOUSE RESPONDS

Bill Designed To Restore Fleet to Full Power Agreed in Arms Treaty Passes, 166 to 138.

VINSON, OF GEORGIA, IN STIRRING SPEECH

Declares Strength of Nation Is Strongest Argument To Be Used at New Conference.

Washington, May 28.—The first step to bring the U. S. navy up to the full treaty ratio has been taken with passage by the house of the bill appropriating $150,000,000 to build eight new cruisers and six river gunboats and to recondition six first-line battleships.

The bill was passed Wednesday night by a vote of 166 to 138 after it had been debated all day.

A few hours before, President Coolidge signed the regular naval appropriation bill which contains a rider requesting him to call a new arms limitation conference.

International Note Dominant.

The international note figured constantly in the prolonged discussion:

1. The argument was presented that the U. S. must have a large navy if it is to exert a commanding influence in any future naval limitation conference.

2. The president would be authorized in an amendment to the bill to suspend the building program if provides in the event of a further international conference.

3. The house defeated an effort to raise the elevation of guns on 12 first-line ships, it being argued that this would violate the present naval limitations treaty.

Survives All Attacks.
The measure stood intact throughout the fight, attempts to strike out the provision for eight new cruisers and six river gunboats being defeated.

Several minor amendments were adopted.

The first vigorous opposition to the program cropped up on the amendment.

Bishops Call Special Parley on Unification for Chattanooga on Wednesday, July 2.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 28.—Special session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, July 2 will be held at Chattanooga, decision having been announced late this afternoon by the committee meeting here to name a location.

The conference will be one of the most important in its history, the age-old question of the unification of the southern and northern branches to be considered.

Aside from the main question at issue, it is probable that the preliminaries of the conference will be stormy, as dissenting bishops are expected to attack the legality of the call for the special meeting on the ground that the ministers of the church will not have sufficient time to properly consider the question of unification, and that it was in violation of church laws.

The conference will meet in the new million-dollar memorial auditorium here.

It is understood that the delegations from various other cities wanting the meeting made a strong bid and that it was awarded to Chattanooga only after a hot fight by the local churchmen.

Other cities asking for the special meeting were Nashville, Memphis, Louisville, Ky., Jackson, Miss., Jacksonville, N. C., Mobile, Ala., Shreveport, La., Springfield, Mo., and Hot Springs, Ark.

Bishops Warren A. Candler, Collins Denny, U. V. W. Darlington and J. E. Dieck, who dissented to the holding of the special conference, have issued the following statement:

"We, the undersigned superintend-

BREWERY RAID

Chicago, May 28.—A room so sealed that it could have been flooded with gas and transformed into a lethal gas chamber was found in the Sieben brewery, recently raided, which Chief of Police Collins declared today he believed had been contrived as a result of a plot to frustrate and perhaps kill raiders.

Thirty-eight men, most of them seized in a raid at the brewery two weeks ago, were indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday, including John Torrio, Dean O'Bannon, a former prohibition agent, a politician and four policemen.

Western Republican Leaders Toss Overboard All Plans To Name Progressive for Place.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, May 28.—(Special.)—Secretary of Commerce Hoover will be among those placed in nomination at the republican convention in Cleveland for vice president. California will name him as her favorite son and western leaders from other states declare that the east will be surprised at the amount of support he will receive.

Hoover was a strong pre-convention candidate for president in 1920. He has a good deal of support throughout the country, and his conduct of the department of commerce—a rather unimportant department until he took hold—has aroused considerable enthusiasm among business men of the country.

Name Lowden Also.
Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, will also be nominated for vice president. His name will be presented by the Oregon delegation, the delegation that started the Coolidge vice presidential boom in 1920 which crumpled up the senate oligarchy plans for Lenroot of Wisconsin.

Westerners arriving here for consultation with national leaders with regard to convention plans are much worried about the vice presidency, and are urging friends of the president to support Hoover.

PRESBYTERIANS
SUPPORT FOSDICK

General Assembly Declines To Forbid Him Right To Preach From Their Pulpits.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 28.—The Presbyterian general assembly has refused to accede to the demand of the fundamentalists that the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of New York, be forbidden to preach in a Presbyterian pulpit.

The assembly sustained a recommendation of its judiciary commission that Dr. Fosdick, to become a minister of the Presbyterian church, be a Baptist.

In effect, the decision of the commission and the assembly put over for another year the Fosdick "heresy" case and allowed the First Presbyterian church, of New York, to retain him as a preacher.

Defeat for Bryan.
William Jennings Bryan and his supporters made a last-minute effort to induce the assembly to take action which would have left the way open for at least a severe criticism of Dr. Fosdick and modernists in general.

Bryan, who had succeeded in capturing enough votes at the assembly to put in a fundamentalist moderator, found himself beaten, and it was rather a surprised vice moderator who watched the assembly vote to sustain the judiciary commission's report on the Fosdick case.

It was the plea of modernists and "middle grounders" that any sharp criticism of Dr. Fosdick would split the church which won many commissioners away from the fundamentalists. Only the most determined efforts on the part of fundamentalists and modernist leaders alike had prevented the Fosdick case from coming up in the assembly until Wednesday and as late as Wednesday morning.

BROTHER CLAIMS
HE ACTED SOLELY IN SELF-DEFENSE

Wade Walker, Motorman, Held Without Bond After Shooting in Ponders Street Home.

DYING MAN DRUNK,
ASSERTS BROTHER

"I Love Him," Says Wade Walker, as He Pleads With Physicians To Save Brother.

Nick Walker, 37 years old, shot early Wednesday night by his brother, Wade Walker, 50, with three of the latter's daughters and a boarder at the house as helpless witnesses, is near death at Grady hospital. Police are holding Wade Walker without bond pending the outcome of his brother's condition.

The shooting occurred, according to the elder Walker, when his brother came to their home at 79 Ponders avenue, in an intoxicated condition, threatening to kill the three girls, his mother, Mrs. L. J. Walker, and his brother. Wade Walker claims he acted in self-defense. After shooting his brother he notified the police station and Grady hospital.

Physicians at Grady state that there is practically no chance for recovery of the wounded man, as the bullet entered behind the right ear, ranging upward, and is imbedded in the brain. In the man's present condition, an operation or probe for the bullet will mean certain death, and doctors are forced to wait further developments before operating. It is stated.

Elder Is Motorman.
Wade Walker, a motorman on the Marietta car line, was arrested at his home as he was dressing, he said, preparatory to going to police station to surrender himself. Call Officers W. A. Chewing and A. F. Duncan, summoned to the home, found the wounded man on the ground a short distance from the front door of the house.

"He told me, 'Damn you, we'll settle this argument now.' I'll get you or you'll get me," Wade Walker sobbed to police, claiming that the shooting occurred when his brother reached for his revolver after being reprimanded for cursing and using obscene language at the dinner table. According to the elder Walker, his brother came to Wade's home to live several months ago. "He came drunk at about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon," he stated, "and began abusing me and my family as soon as he got there. I reprimanded him for drinking and finally got him quieted down."

"However, when he sat down at the table he again used objectionable language and when I attempted to quiet him, he became more abusive and threatened to shoot me."

"Nick jumped from the table, ran from the room, and into the yard. The rest of us followed and I was standing in the doorway, with my three girls on the porch, when Nick made a motion as if to reach for his revolver.

"I had grabbed a small caliber rifle from the dining room as I started for the door, and when Nick moved as if to carry out his threats, I had no choice but to shoot."

When hospital attendants picked the injured man up to place him in an ambulance, a double-barrel derringer, protruding from his pocket, fell to the ground. It was claimed that the body had not been touched until arrival of police and ambulance drivers.

The injured man's brother, according to police, appeared heart-broken and ordered everything possible to be done in an attempt to save his brother's life. "When he was not drinking, I loved Nick like every man should love his brother, but he could not leave liquor alone, and had come home drunk on several previous occasions."

Quarrelled Often.

The elder Walker told investigating officers that his brother, Nick, and another brother, Alex Walker, fought after a similar argument several weeks ago, Nick striking Alex on the forehead with a hammer. Alex, who is a World War veteran, is now a patient in a government hospital in Mississippi.

Wade Walker stated that on other occasions when Nick had been drunk he had been able to quiet him, but said that his brother never before had been so boisterous and insulting.

Walter W. Trenton, a boarder, who witnessed the entire argument leading to the fight, corroborated this story of the shooting. Miss Nora Stanley, an aunt of the Walker brothers, related accounts of previous quarrels between the brothers, all of which, she said, were brought about by the wounded man's drinking.

AUTO CLUB FAVORS ROAD BOND ISSUE

A short talk advocating the proposed good roads bond issue. He told of the difficulties the department has labored under through lack of proper financial support from the state, and said that a great paved system of roads, as planned, would enhance real estate values, reduce haulage costs, reduce the cost of living, bring the people of the towns and country, and of the different cities, closer together.

Mr. Van Harlingen, the new president, said the greatest need of the club was more members and he called on every member to bring in at least one new one during the coming year.

Approve Legislative Bill.

A resolution, introduced by Coke Davis, was adopted, approving a bill which will be introduced in the legislature this year, providing that all automobile sales made in Georgia must be recorded and a certificate of title given the purchaser of every car. The object of this is to reduce the number of automobile thefts, by making it practically impossible for a stolen car to be sold in the state.

A resolution of sympathy was sent to the treasurer, Julian V. Boehm, who was unable to be present because of sickness.

The orchestra of the Junior Chamber of Commerce furnished music for the program.

not an economic question, and records its disapproval of the exclusion clause. The relatively unimportant Yamato voices hopes of the Japanese element in declaring that Japan's revenge will come soon, and will be of an extraordinary sort.

Consul Receives Threats.

Meanwhile, the American consul general at Seoul, capital of Korea, is reported to have received a number of threatening letters, and is also reported to have applied to police for protection. It is announced simultaneously that the number of pupils in American mission schools is decreasing.

As the government protests exclusion, the people are still fighting for an opportunity to reach America. The S. S. Taiyo Maru is carrying 800 Japanese couples, emigrants and new brides. Almost 1,500 emigrants were obliged to leave in the ship were unable to obtain bookings.

PROTEST SYMPATHETICALLY RECEIVED AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 28.—Japanese protests against the new exclusion law are being received sympathetically by the administration, but they cannot alter the new policy just adopted by congress.

Suggestions that a new treaty be negotiated, which would take the place of statutory exclusion, meet with no favor at the state department at this time. The feeling in congress makes such a course impractical. Later, it may be possible to work out some harmonious plan.

but for the present, exclusion will be by law and not by voluntary agreement.

The protest from Tokyo, which is now on the way here, has been expected by the administration. Secretary of State Hughes is thoroughly familiar with the Japanese position and for that reason was especially active in trying to prevent the exclusion law from being enacted. But his efforts failed and his only recourse now will be to dispatch a reply to the Japanese note, which will explain the situation in a friendly way, designed to remove pangs of wounded pride.

Hanihara to Return Home.

Ambassador Hanihara is to return to Tokyo in the near future. His retirement as ambassador to the United States has been expected ever since his now-famous "grave consequences" note to Secretary Hughes became public. It was this note which gave the exclusionists in congress enough strength to defy the hardest compromise efforts of Coolidge and Hughes. Administration officials are fully cognizant of the domestic situation which the Japanese government must deal with as a result of the exclusion law and they will consider the new note from Tokyo with that in mind. This government does not believe any treaty rights have been violated by the law and considers the Japanese immigration problem entirely as one of domestic policy, so far as the United States is concerned. It also realizes that domestic politics in Japan have to be considered by the Japanese government, and there is every disposition here to be considerate of the Tokyo government's position. American officials regard the Japanese note as having been prepared primarily for consumption overseas. They will make a courteous and friendly reply, but no change in the policy of exclusion can be expected.

DIET LEADERS PLEDGED TO RESTORE OLD AMITY.

Tokyo, May 28.—Leaders in every party of both houses of the Japanese diet, at a special meeting here today, pledged themselves to work for the restoration of the "old amity" between the United States and Japan.

The resolution adopted by the leaders expressed belief that the exclusion clause, which applies to Japanese, in the new American immigration law, did not represent the true spirit of the American people.

The resolutions read:

"Whereas, the United States has enacted a general immigration bill clearly meant to discriminate against the Japanese;

"Whereas, the president of the United States in signing that bill signified in plain words that he strongly disapproved of said clause as a violation of the traditional cherished amity between Japan and America, and that his forced approval of the act, despite his expressed disapproval, was owing to the urgent national demand for the law as a whole; further,

"Whereas, the responsible press of America, together with the great body of informed opinion, both official and private, throughout the country, has expressed repeatedly its unequivocal opposition, thus indicating the true American spirit; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we, members of both houses of the diet, here express our strong resentment at this unjust action by congress, which alone we hold responsible for attacking the friendly relations between the two countries, and be it further

"Resolved, That we shall devote our efforts to the restoration as soon as possible of the old amity between Japan and America, by the undoing of this wrong."

ents of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, did not and do not agree to the calling of an extra session of the general conference on July 2, and we feel that it is due the church as well as ourselves to give the reasons for our dissent from the conclusion reached by the majority of the bishops.

"Grave doubts have been raised about the legal adoption of paragraphs 37 and 38 of the discipline of 1922, which are as follows:

"37.—The bishops, or a majority of the annual conferences shall have authority to call a general conference at any time, if they considered it necessary."

"38.—When a general conference is called, it shall be constituted of the delegates elected to the preceding general conference, except when an annual conference shall prefer to have a new election."

Are Only Authority.

"These paragraphs, 37 and 38, which alone of all the contents of our book of discipline refer to the authority of the bishops to call an extra session of the general conference, are a part of the constitution of the general conference."

"They were passed by the general conference of 1908, but they were not referred to the annual conferences for approval, nor does the record show that they were passed by a two-thirds vote of the general conference, by which vote amendments to the constitution must be adopted."

"These facts were laid before the general conference in 1914 in a report prepared by a committee on the constitution of which Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson was the chairman, which report was approved unanimously by the college of bishops before it was submitted to the general conference."

Doubt Validity of Action.

"The report recommended that the general conference consider the matter and make the amendments in a constitutional manner; but no action was taken upon this portion or any other part of the report. Hence the doubts which have been raised concerning the constitutional validity of these paragraphs."

"However, if their constitutionality were established, in our judgment; supported by convincing opinions of many of the ablest lawyers in the church, these paragraphs do not authorize the bishops to call a special session of the general conference at any time which would deprive the annual conferences of their right to the preceding general conference or to have a new election if they should so prefer."

"In a matter of so great importance as the proposed plan of unification, the rights of the annual conferences cannot be too scrupulously regarded and too carefully protected."

"Moreover, we could not and do not see any reason for such a hasty assembling of the general conference, July 2, 1924. Our preachers and people have a right to more time for examination and consideration of the plan."

No Reason for Haste.

"The resolution of the general conference of 1922, undertaking to authorize and instruct the bishops to call an extra session in a certain contingency as its terms show, does not require such haste. It is as follows:

"Instead of the joint consideration proposed, we recommended a special session of the general conference of our church, when a plan for unification is endorsed by a two-thirds vote of each commission and approved by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, then our college of bishops is empowered and instructed to call the special session of our general conference."

"We have not had any disposition to defeat or needlessly delay the purpose of this resolution. Accordingly, a motion was made in the college of bishops by two of our number that the special session be set for the first Wednesday in May, 1925."

Want Simple Justice.

"We believe this date, if it had been adopted, would have escaped all legal difficulties; would have accorded the annual conference their rights, and would have done simply justice to them. It would also have given proper time for deliberate consideration of the proposed plan of unification by all our preachers and people."

"We must assume that the general conference of 1922, by the resolution which has been quoted, did not intend to instruct the bishops to do any illegal or unjust act."

"We believe that the calling of the extra session of the general conference on the first Wednesday in May, 1925, would have more truly carried out the resolution of the general conference of 1922 than will the date fixed by a majority of the bishops—namely, July 2, 1924—which date is but a little more than forty days from this time."

"We are sure it would have been in keeping with the law of the church and in harmony with the rights of the annual conferences."

"We cannot in good conscience approve a call the date of which, as we believe, violates law and does the annual conferences grave injustice by depriving them of their rights under paragraph 38."

PRESBYTERIANS SUPPORT FORDICK

fundamentalist leaders still were certain that the assembly would not adjourn without at least adopting a resolution condemning Dr. Fordick. The committee recommendation:

"The Presbytery of New York be instructed, through its committee, or through the session of the First Presbytery church, to take up with Dr. Fordick this question to the end that he may determine whether, it is his pleasure to enter the Presbyterian church and thus be in regular relationship with the First Presbyterian church as one of its pastors."

Although the decision of the commission was not debatable it was open to review, if a motion to that effect had been made and carried. Led by Bryan, the fundamentalists had planned to have the report reviewed and through effecting a parliamentary victory, open the way to obtaining condemnation of Dr. Fordick and his pulpits utterances.

Vote Was 504 to 311.

The Rev. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, one of the militant fundamentalists, a member of the group which had been trying to have the Presbytery assembly define what clergy and members should preach and believe, moved that the case be opened to review by the assembly. Heated debate followed, with protracted discussions finally ending in a storm of demands for a vote.

Only 311 commissioners voted for the review, while 504 voted against reopening the case and in support of the judiciary commission's action.

Although unwilling to talk for publication, several fundamentalist leaders admitted that they were surprised over the action of the assembly in virtually inviting Dr. Fordick to become a Presbyterian minister and in allowing him to continue preaching in a Presbyterian pulpit.

Among church leaders in the assembly the action was regarded as virtually sounding the death knell of the Fordick case. Moderates asserted that the move also marked the end of a campaign waged by fundamentalists to oust clergymen from the Presbyterian church who have ceased to subscribe to a literal acceptance of scriptural doctrines and church teachings.

CHATTANOOGA HIT TWICE IN DAY

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 28.—A windstorm of terrific fury, accompanied by hail and rain, descended on Chattanooga this afternoon at 4 o'clock, uprooting trees, wrenching off limbs and flooding downtown streets to the depth of several inches. A residence was struck by lightning during the gale and a woman was knocked down but escaped serious injury. An automobile was picked up bodily by the wind and carried across the street. The hailstones were the largest to fall in this section for some time, and it is believed much damage was done to gardens and other vegetables. Two thousand telephones were placed out of commission.

The wind reached a velocity of 55 miles an hour at one time and the rainfall within fifteen minutes was one inch. Hail the size of marbles fell for six minutes.

This is the second storm to strike the city today. The first occurring early this morning, during which 1.20 inches of rain fell, making the total for the day 2.28 inches.

The temperature fell from 85 to 60 degrees during this evening's storm.

MISSISSIPPI TURNS TO WORK OF RELIEF

Jackson, Miss., May 28.—With the dead buried and the injured being cared for in hospitals, Mississippi today turned attention to the many families rendered homeless and destitute by the violent wind storm which swept sections of the state Monday night and yesterday morning, taking a death toll of 21 persons and injuring more than half a hundred, and causing property damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Units of the Red Cross have organized and have taken charge of the relief work in the stricken centers. The southern division of the American Red Cross telegraphed state field representatives offering assistance.

Reports today from Summit in Pike county, stated that practically every building in the town was damaged, two churches, several business houses and many residences having been totally wrecked. The loss there was estimated at $200,000. A similar loss was suffered at Collins, where virtually the same conditions prevailed. Heavy damage also was caused at Ince, where thirty persons are homeless, and at Johnston station.

Wire communication, badly crippled in the storm areas, was gradually being restored today.

ATLANTA OFFICIALS OF RED CROSS LEAVE.

W. D. Taylor, director of public information for the southern division of the American Red Cross, with headquarters in Atlanta, left Wednesday for Collins, Miss., in the heart of the storm-swept district, to confer with local relief committees. Other additional personnel officers from Atlanta headquarters also left for Mississippi during Wednesday, and reports show that the work of mercy is well under way.

REPUUDIATING AUTOCRACY.

At a meeting of the state democratic executive committee in Atlanta Wednesday—remarkable for its harmony—the rules adopted for the September primary and the subsequent state convention placed the party in Georgia back into the house of the fathers, and vindicated, by unanimous action, the position of The Constitution in opposition to the wholly undemocratic rules adopted in January to govern the presidential primary of April, and its subsequent convention.

The rules adopted in January placed exclusively in the hands of the successful candidate, or his agents, the naming of the delegates to the convention from all the counties, including those carried by unsuccessful candidates, and without necessary reference to or consultation with the county committees in the respective counties, or even the friends and supporters of the successful candidates in the various counties.

How this rule was subsequently employed, by which local voice in the selection of delegates was completely ignored, and county autonomy, which is the basic principle of representative democracy, was abrogated by the secret manipulations of a small group in Atlanta, is now political history. It is water that has passed over the wheel, and no good purpose can be served by calling further attention to it here.

It is satisfaction enough to know that the state committee, in so short a time—even earlier than The Constitution had dared to hope—saw and recognized the error it had made and completely repaired it, without protest or a dissenting vote.

Indeed one of the committeemen publicly acknowledged the former mistake of the committee, in offering the new rule for adoption.

As adopted, and as will govern the next state convention, the delegates will be appointed by the county committee from among the friends and supporters of candidates receiving the unit of that county.

This is in substance, if indeed not in its complete text, the old "rule nine," which had been a traditional policy of the democratic party in Georgia until, most unfortunately, it was abrogated in January.

The Constitution commends the committee for its action of Wednesday.

The reestablishment of democracy must not stop at this, however. Other committees in the future, seeing some purpose to serve, may abrogate this democratic rule again, and thus again set up an autocracy that, unchecked, will threaten the continuation of the primary system.

The legislature should seal the question with a legal mandate. It is not wise to encumber the primary laws any more than is necessary, but experience has now forcibly taught the necessity for legislative action in this matter, otherwise it is no idle prediction to say that sooner or later the primary system in Georgia will be thrown into the scrap heap.

Not alone should the legislature enact "rule nine," or its substance, thereby preserving the principles of local self-government and the rights of minorities in conventions, but it should incorporate the quadrennial presidential primary into its system; and then, in the interest of harmony, and a relief from un-ing campaigns, consolidate the various primaries as nearly as is feasible and wise.

Georgia's annual assembly, and the almost unending primary campaigns, of one kind and another, are the most disturbing factors to the economic welfare of the state.

They create an unrest, an uneasiness, a disturbing of time that should be devoted to more constructive things—all to such an extent that the state suffers from too much politics as does no other state in this union.

The 1924 session of the assembly will convene in 30 days. It has the opportunity to reconstruct Georgia's political system, and that without delay as constitutional amendments can be voted on in November.

The strengthening of the primary laws as suggested, the biennial session, and the four-year single term for governor, with an improved and stable tax system, will put this state back into its rightful place, in economics, industry, agriculture and education, in less than five years.

Thus, and thus only, can it become a leader instead of a trailer, as it is today.

"TIGER" AS ACCESSORY.

Two young Baldwin county white men—no unintelligent looking from their pictures as published—have just been convicted of a grave capital offense, committed in Jones county, and have been sentenced to hang on June 27.

While denying the charge, which was offset by the identification of both by the aged victim, both defendants admitted that they were "lanked up" on home-brewed "hootch" bought, as they alleged, from a bootlegger across the line in Bibb county.

In passing sentence Judge James P. Park, of the Ocmulgee circuit, made request of the officers that the identification of the bootlegger, who sold the young men "hootch" that would so sear their moral senses and fire their brutal passions as to make them capable of such an offense, be established, and declared he would make him an "accessory to the crime," in addition to the ordinary charge of violating the prohibition laws.

The purpose of this comment is first to again emphasize the trail of crime and sorrow that is left by the "white lightning" that is so freely sold and consumed in Georgia, and everywhere; and, second, to commend the action of Judge Park, and urge that every trial judge in Georgia make the bootlegger accessory to any crime that is committed through the effects of the concoctions that he passes on to the patronizing public.

If this is done rigidly, bootlegging will be materially minimized in this state.

Today it is one of the outstanding evils, and an ever-present menace to the morals as well as to the lives and limbs of those who drink the crazy-crating brew, and a menace to society in which the brain-bewildered hootch drinkers mingle.

These young men would not, in all reasonable possibility, have committed the crime which they must expiate with their lives, had it not been for the hip-pocket flask of a concoction that dissipated every fiber of manhood and every moral instinct. They would not have been possessed of the hootch had there not been a ready bootlegger to pass it out for the "easy money" that the bootlegging game provides.

The moral is a gripping one, and accentuates the necessity for an aroused public conscience against the deplorable situation that exists in every county and in every nook and corner of this country. While this case the crime is one to attract more than passing attention, there are lesser crimes committed as a result of the flood of home-brew in every community and almost every day of the week. The victim of a drunk-crazed speed fiend on the public highway is a victim of home-brew. If the victim is killed it is nothing short of murder. Manditory, shooting scrapes, homicides of every degree occur daily, and are traceable to home-brew. It kills; it causes its human agents of moral depravity to kill.

If every crime in which liquor plays a part is laid not only at the door of the direct offender, but at the door of the accessory who supplied the liquor, there will be a revolution in the present lax and almost disreputable enforcement situation.

Judge Park's plan to find the bootlegger in the Jones county felony ought to become a fixed determination of every trial judge in this state and nation.

The spring garden will soon be coming on in fine shape, if the killers of the fruit crop will keep their advice to themselves.

Anyway, if there should be a summer session, congress will at last be "a warm number."

The recent storm "blew the skin from a cat and the horns from a cow." Next storm we may hear from will take the scales from a fish.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PASSEN

"Sing a Song 'O Twopence."

The president of the reichstag is calling the roll. It's the first session of the new house. When he reaches the name of Field Marshal Erich von Ludendorff there is a commotion. But the old soldier answers to his name with a stentorian military "Present," when suddenly a peal of laughter breaks loose. Ripples of laughter, volumes and waves of convulsive laughter followed that first outburst. At first the fascist members with their square monoches and shaven heads maintain an angry and haughty silence, but at last they begin to howl and yell. The socialists and the communists, the "international" and the nationalists reply with "Deutschland Ueber Alles." Song singing seems to become rather the universal vogue at political meetings. Lady Astor, when heckled by women in the Glasgow by-election campaign, started "Keep the home fires burning." In Canada the conservatives, after listening to a strong imperialist speech, rose as one man and sang "God Save the King," and the French Canadian liberals and nationalists replied with "O Canada, terre de nos aïeux," followed by the famous shanty song, "On a marché sur la neige." "Don't be afraid to enter the home where you hear a song; only good people sing." It's true while you sing you don't think of beating up anyone, and men and soldiers sang a psalm before battle and afterwards licked the Pappenheimers.

Raising a Ghost.

A singular request to the British government has been made by the soviet delegation now in London. They want to dig up the bones of Karl Marx and ship them to Moscow, where they plan to bury them again next to the mausoleum of Nikolai Ilyich Oulianov, commonly known as Lenin. The soviet delegation have gone to some pains from time to time to establish definitely that they are the legitimate and lineal descendants of Marx. They claim to be the genuine practitioners of the doctrine of which Marx was the theorist. To have his bones in their midst would go some way to prove the validity of their statement. Moreover, the bolsheviks know the value of the Russian people and the remains of Lenin and Marx would be valuable substitutes for the bones and relics of Russian saints, which have been venerated for centuries. Against the claims of the reds appears Jean Longuet, deputy to the French chamber and grandson of Marx. He also calls himself a Marxist, but at the same time is the deadly enemy of the bolsheviks.

There Are Two Sides.

The London Times compliments the English people on the fact that Britain has cleared herself of complicity in violating the American laws or adding to her perplexities in the matter of prohibition enforcement. This expression comes as an editorial comment on the article published by Mr. Herbert West, who tells of dancing the tango with a judge in the middle west and taking a drink from a huge silver flask and the condemnation next day by the judge of the dancer for having a pint of liquor. Miss West, who was the judge's guest on the bench, observes about the negro: "This aged woman, mind you, had not been hawking her wares for a long time, and she, he had been to a party. You may understand now why the best and wisest Americans, even those who observe the laws in their own homes, hate and loathe prohibition." Here Miss West is only partially right. Many of the best and wisest Americans think prohibition a very valuable experiment from the standpoint of civilized progress.

A Challenge To France.

Young German women have banded themselves together. They will resist five years in some kind of employment, earn sufficient money to make themselves desirable in the marriage market, and marry. Each of the girls has pledged the organization that she will resist six years in the future. That's patriotism for you. It ought to make the French militarists even more nervous. From Baden comes word that there is an epidemic of twins in the city of Karlsruhe. The twins are enthusiastic and so are the nationalist branches in the town. No wonder they have revived the refrain of the "Wecht am Rhein," and are singing with an eye to the future, "Leib Vaterland magst ruhig sein," which means that the fatherland may rest easy and assured.

On Divine Healing.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the famous commoner, who had been an invalid for many years, reports that she is able to move one of her arms slightly, a thing she was not able to do before accepting faith in divine healing as preached to her by Raymond Richey, an evangelist. It is quite well possible that Mrs. Bryan should be completely cured in the future. People have been cured, or thought they were cured, throughout the centuries of history. Believing the Christian doctrine, it is a wonder that no greater marvels have been accomplished. For Christ told His disciples that if they had but faith, they would be able to do greater things than He did. Over in the ghetto at Lourdes there are mountainous piles of crutches from people who walked away healed. The same applies to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, in Quebec, and Russia just around the corner. The Russian putin healed and cured the afflicted Russian grand duchesses and princesses. Still Rasputin was a scoundrel. Historical evidence has stripped him of his mystic. He was more of a satanic embodiment than anything else.

CALHOUN STREET SCHOOL'S SENIOR CLASS GRADUATES

A class of sixty-nine boys and girls, the largest class in the history of Calhoun Street school, received their certificates of graduation at exercises held Tuesday morning with Miss Irene Gresham, president of the class, in charge of a special program in connection with the formal exercises.

Speakers of the occasion were: Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools; H. Reid Hunter, superintendent of high schools; R. M. Hartings, principal of O'Keefe Junior High school; and James H. Smith, principal of Base High school.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The "Greater Georgia Tech" is being worked out by Dr. Brittain and the board of trustees so that already the new buildings and new activities are beginning to appear on the North avenue campus.

Extension of the campus itself, Dr. Brittain tells me, was considered the most pressing need of all.

Almost the entire block east of Grand field has been purchased at a cost of $45,000. Half of this has already been paid, and the remaining annual payments will be met as they fall due.

The physics building was the first new structure erected. It was completed in January of this year at a cost of $188,000. The necessary furnishings and apparatus required an additional investment of $12,000. "We have, therefore," said Dr. Brittain, "this handsome addition on the corner of Third and Cherry streets at a total cost of $200,000. One hundred and fifty thousand of this came from the Carnegie corporation, and the remainder from other Greater Tech funds."

The foundry has been outgrown through the increase in numbers of the student body. Accordingly, a twenty-five-foot extension of this building was undertaken in February. It will be completed by summer at a cost of $5,000, and will add much-needed space to this work of the school.

Known dormitory needs repair and improvement. The trustees have authorized this at a cost not to exceed $10,000. This will add bath-room facilities, and permit painting and other needed repairs at this ancient and time-worn structure.

All of these needed improvements have been made possible through the Greater Tech campaign, and but for this splendid aid, Georgia Tech could not have been able to accommodate several of the new classes and instructors. Much of this work is not spectacular, but is nevertheless just as necessary as any great building.

The new ceramic building will require and receive some help from the Greater Tech funds, though the new department has been established by those connected with this great industry.

Dr. Brittain showed me the list of those who have provided the nearly $40,000 necessary to start this project for the development of a great Georgia industry. Aside from the maintenance appropriation from the state and $10,000 from Fulton county, the entire amount has come, almost spontaneously, from interested citizens of Georgia. The list of gifts speaks for itself:

County of Fulton, $10,000; Merry Brothers, Augusta, $5,000; J. B. McCarty & Co., Atlanta, $500; Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta, $500; M. C. Kiser, Atlanta, $500; D. Greenfield Estate, $200; H. L. PROPERTY OWNERS ASK FOR 1923 RATE

An appeal by property owners to restore the 1923 tax assessment on the property along Hunter street viaduct approach was taken under advisement by the tax committee of council Wednesday afternoon, to be decided on at the next meeting.

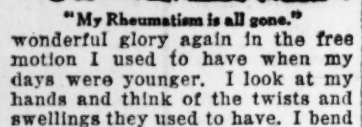

The committee also instructed the tax assessors to prepare a printed form on which property owners may appeal to the committee from rulings of the assessors. Requests for adjustment of the H. Wilensky property at Forsyth and Hunter, and on the building occupied by the St. Mary's convent on Whitehall and Broad, were deferred until the appeal is made in legal form. An affidavit setting out all personal and real property owned by the petitioner is required in connection with an appeal.

The Hunter street property owners, with J. L. McCord as spokesman, told the committee that the property along the bridge had been a "dead loss" for two years, but assessments had been increased substantially for this year.

SPECIAL TO TAKE VETS TO REUNION MONDAY, JUNE 2

General G. W. Wells, commander of the North Georgia brigade, has issued an urgent request that all veterans throughout Georgia, and especially those from Fulton county, who are going to the Memphis reunion, join his delegation at the Seaboard Air Line special train leaving Atlanta at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon and arriving at Memphis at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

For those who desire to make the trip by day next Monday, there is a train leaving Atlanta over the Seaboard at 8 a. m. and reaching Memphis at 8 o'clock that night.

Stopovers will be allowed on all tickets. Special passenger representatives will accompany trains to Memphis and remain there to look after comfort and convenience of veterans on the return trip.

Fred Geisler, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Seaboard, said Wednesday there would be ample accommodations on the special train Monday afternoon for all who desire to make the trip. The special will consist of sleepers, coaches and dining car.

In addition to the special train, there will be regular daily service over the Seaboard from Atlanta to Memphis, leaving here at 4:40 in the afternoon and arriving in Memphis the next morning at 7:40.

WORK ON HUNTER STREET APPROACH NEAR COMPLETION

The Hunter street approach to Spring street viaduct will be opened to traffic by June 15, it was announced Wednesday by W. E. Reynolds, engineer in charge.

Paving on the ramp will be completed today and construction forces will begin immediately to repave the part of Hunter and the west side of Forsyth street, at Hunter, to make it join smoothly with the inclined roadway of the ramp. Mr. Reynolds said, "Completion of Hunter street approach was delayed for several months by injunctions taken by property owners because of a special tax assessment levied to secure money to buy the right of way. Originally it had been planned to complete the approach at the same time the Spring street viaduct was completed. The viaduct has been open since September 15 of last year.

Plans are being made by members of the bond commission and city council to open the new approach with special ceremonies. Plans will not be announced, however, until it is determined definitely what day the approach will be ready for traffic.

CHRIS H. ESSIG HEADS DRILL TEAM OF COEUR DE LION

Chris H. Essig was elected president of the Coeur de Lion Knights Templar drill team Tuesday night at the annual meeting held at the Masonic temple. Other officers named for the ensuing year are: A. M. Beattie, vice-president; Bartis E. Goodwin, secretary; Harvey Reese, treasurer; Luther B. Stephens, captain; W. Tom Brown, first lieutenant; A. D. Barber, second lieutenant; and W. L. Pattillo, chairman of the membership committee.

The team is one of the best drilled in Georgia, and last week took first prize at the Grand Commandery Knights Templar convocation at Columbus, Ga., giving them the title until next year's convocation at Athens.

Treasurer's reports showed the commandery to be in fine financial condition, and plans are being laid for one of the biggest years since organization of the team.

SUNDAY MAY COST SAVANNAH SLAYER TWO DAYS OF LIFE

Because July 27 comes on Sunday it is possible that the life of Ben Charlton, Savannah negro, will be shortened by two days.

Charlton was sentenced to hang on May 28 for the murder of his wife. However, Governor Walker granted a 60-day respite, in order that he might investigate alleged new evidence which concerns the character of the woman. It is claimed that she married Charlton under an assumed name after herself being tried for murder.

When Governor Walker telephoned Miss Myrtle White, executive secretary, to grant the 60-day respite, she found that the new date would fall on Sunday. She therefore made the period 58 days instead, making the new execution date fall on Friday, the customary hanging day in Georgia.

J. C. STAFFORD GIVEN 2 YEARS IN PEN HERE

Baltimore, Md., May 27.—John C. Stafford, said to be the owner of a laundry in Petersburg, Va., today was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta penitentiary and fined a total of $500 on an accumulation of charges that have been pending against him here for more than a year.

Sentence was passed in the United States district court following a plea of guilty by Stafford to a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice by allowing another man to substitute for him in serving a sentence in the Upper Marlboro, Md., jail and to two second offense charges of violating the Volstead act.

Stafford was given two years and a $100 fine in the jail substitution case. He was given two terms of two years each in the liquor cases, all three sentences to run consecutively. Additional fines of $200 were imposed in each of the latter cases.

Mrs. Lupton and 'Gray Mule' To Outline Oglethorpe Hall

Mrs. J. T. Lupton, of Chattahoochee, who, with her husband, will be honor guests of the faculty and students of Oglethorpe university at the breaking of ground for Lupton Hall on the university campus Saturday afternoon, will, on that occasion, probably do the first plowing of her lot. Major Bowman, general factotum at Oglethorpe, has promised to have the "old gray mule" decorated with old gold and black, Oglethorpe colors, and properly instructed for the occasion, and Mrs. Lupton will set her hands to the plow, running a furrow around the outline of the two new buildings which are to be completed by the university.

Through courtesy of Mrs. William Oldknow, prominent member of the woman's board of Oglethorpe, Pathe will take a series of moving pictures of the campus exercises Saturday afternoon, including the pictures of the ground-breaking for Lupton Hall, views of the Sylvan play offered by the Players' club, of the all-female party following at the "Starry Peacock" champion baseball team of the south, and of the gathering of women who will constitute the woman's board of the university, which convenes at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Lupton Hall for its annual spring meeting.

The three buildings combined will represent an outlay of approximately $300,000, the largest gift ever made to an Atlanta educational institution by any one not residing in the city.

Gibbons Ends Hard Work; Georges Sees Fight Film

Michigan City, Ind., May 28.—(By Associated Press.)—With a spirited ten-round session with the heavyweights of his training camp, Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, today wound up his boxing program for his ten-round boxing contest with Georges Carpentier here Saturday afternoon.

Gibbons will do no more boxing, but will do light work tomorrow and Friday merely to keep on edge. The St. Paul light-heavyweight finished in perfect condition after the extraordinary amount of work. He faced five sparring partners for two rounds apiece, carrying them along at a spirited pace and revealing speed and flashy footwork.

Gibbons looked like a perfectly trained athlete after the workout. He ventured the opinion that his condition is as good as when he boxed Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., last Fourth of July.

While Gibbons was engaging in his last boxing, Carpentier stole out of the city with Jack Curley, his American representative, and others for a private exhibition of the motion picture of the Gibbons-Dempsey film.

Carpentier will do his final boxing tomorrow, according to program. Eugene Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., selected as referee, will meet Carpentier and Gibbons tomorrow to explain the rules. Dickerson, stated the referee and his assistants as well as the pivot blow will be barred.

As a result of a change of the program several unadvertised preliminaries will begin at 2 p. m. Central Standard time. The crowd is interested until the regular program, which starts an hour later.

If there are indications of threatening weather, the Gibbons-Carpentier bout will be put on as soon as possible after 3 o'clock. But if the weather is fair, the match will not begin until possibly 4 p. m.

THE RULES of Golf —By— Innis Brown

BALL MOVED. If a ball at rest is moved by anything or any person not engaged in the match, except the wind, the ball must be dropped, as near as can be told, to where it lay when moved.

On the putting green, it must be replaced, instead of dropped. This rule dates back to the early codes of the game, and incidentally has been the medium of some rather surprising interpretations.

For instance, it must be definitely and positively known that the ball has been moved, and it may not be merely assumed from circumstantial evidence. The reason for this comes out in play almost every day. Some very remarkable and unexpected things happen in the course of a round frequently, so that to allow action on the ground that a ball supposedly had been moved, would mean introducing no end of opportunities for argument.

This rule, incidentally, permits a player to lift and drop a ball that has been run over by a mowing machine or other vehicle and practically buried in the ground. It has been displaced so it can be lifted and dropped.

Explanations. A player's ball becomes lost in fine grass. It is eventually found partially buried in the ground. Several spectators had engaged in the search for the ball. The player claimed that one of these had stepped on it and that he has a right to lift and drop. Is he correct?

Not unless it is clearly shown that the ball has been stepped on and mowed into the ground. In that case, yes.

A ball driven from the tee stops in a roadway that crosses the fairway. A motor car strikes it and knocks it onto the fairway. Must the player drop it back in the roadway, or can he play it where it lies?

The ball must be dropped back as near as possible to where it lay, when it was displaced.

If any golf rules puzzle you, write Innis Brown, care of Constitution sporting editor, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope. He'll clear them for you.

For a Better Score. There are numerous causes for slicing, fairly prominent among which is the habit of keeping the weight too much back on the right leg. Usually this is marked by the player swinging the left side of the body and the left leg around, sometimes finishing with the left foot practically clear of the ground. This trouble is started as early as the top of the backswing; it results from not getting the proper balance there. See that you are putting a very appreciable amount of pressure on the big toe and ball of the left foot at the top of the backswing.

In other words, that while the right leg supports possibly the majority of the weight, you still have a secure sense of balance from side to side.

Insurance League Has 3 Games

BY M. D. GLEASON. The third round was played in the Insurance league at Piedmont park yesterday afternoon, six of the teams playing on three of the diamonds at the same time.

The A. H. Turner club won easily from the Firemen's Fund by the score of 12 to 1. The Firemen's Fund boys could not connect with "Lefty" Larsen at all. He let them down with two infield hits and struck out four men in nine innings.

The Turner boys, on the other hand, smashed the old apple to all corners of the lot. "Red" Jones, Kinnitt Guldberg, Hawkins, Eskew and Paris getting two hits each during the fray.

The batteries were Dennis and Zerk on the Turner side, and the Firemen's Fund, and Larsen and Guldberg for the A. H. Turner team. The umpire was Owen Pack.

Errors Cost Niehoff Club 10-Inning Contest, 3 to 2; Travelers Next Opponents

BY HENRY ALLEN. Constitution Staff Correspondent. Memphis, Tenn., May 28.—(Special.)—Ray Francis proved today at Rueswood Field that he can play good baseball although the Chicks did win a hectic ten-inning contest, 3 to 2, making a clean sweep of the four games between the two clubs.

The good pitching on the part of Francis didn't count for much because errors on the part of his teammates allowed the Chicks an advantage.

The first run scored by the Dobbs tribe came as the direct result of two errors. Bill McCabe dropped Taylor's high one to deep right center and the latter pulled in at second before he had recovered. Another error by Krehmeyer allowed him to score.

Errors also occurred in the inning in which the tying run was scored. Monroe Mitchell, a former Cracker, was the moundman for the Chicks and pitched as nice a game as anyone would like to witness. This makes his second win in as many days. Although he worked only one inning he received credit for winning the contest of the double header on Tuesday.

Field Calm. "Things were calm and serene on the field today among the players following the riot Tuesday when Zoellers and Tommy Taylor were mixed up.

Feeling was running high among the fans and they appeared to be the bravest ones in the park. Seated up in the stands, away from the players, they hurled plenty of names at the Crackers.

This is the first time this season that the Crackers have lost four in a row. Winning of these contests gives the Chicks a nice lead in the flag race and the Crackers will have to battle hard to regain their lost ground.

The squad left here tonight for Little Rock where it has four games slated with Kid Elberfeld's Travelers. Doubleheader is scheduled for Friday.

Dick Niehoff will be the pitching selection for the Crackers with either Swartz or Newton drawing one of the games of the doubleheader. Newton appears to have plenty of stuff and Niehoff is inclined to give him a chance in one of the Little Rock games.

The Chicks took a lead of one run in the fourth inning without garnering a hit. Wade struck out Taylor hit a long fly to McCabe who dropped it and Taylor pulled up at second. Carlyle was an easy out, but Taylor was safe at third. Kolbbeck hit to Krehmeyer who let it get through and Taylor scored.

The Crackers' big inning was the eighth. After two men were down Puschall walked and scored on Burrows' double to right. Smith was purposely walked, and Krehmeyer singled to score Burrows.

The Chicks ended it up in their half of the eighth. Billy Gleason started the inning with a double, Wade was safe on Hillis' error. Taylor singled to right to score Gleason.

Matters then rocked along easily until the tenth. Gleason was an easy out and Wade looked bad on two strikes, but crashed the next one to the right field wall for three bases. Taylor was purposely walked. Roy Carlyle, on the first pitched ball, bounced a frock to Texas longer to left to score the winning counter.

THEATRE NOW "SO THIS IS LONDON"

WHAT ATLANTA CRITICS SAY. Ralph Jones in The Constitution: This production, beyond question, is superior to anything shown here since the Baldwin season opened. Everything around it is right.

Fussy Woodruff in The Georgian: Wherein in all justice and frankness let it be recorded that this Atlanta stock company with a rare work of rehearsal presented a more finished and artistic performance than the one by the road company which everyone so thoroughly enjoyed.

Rita Taylor in The Journal: This undoubtedly is one of the most humorous and carefully drawn bits of comedy ever seen here.

THE GOTHAM BROKERS INDICTED FOR FRAUD

New York, May 28.—William S. Silkworth, former president of the Consolidated Exchange, Louis Gilbough, member of the board of governors, and seven other brokers today were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of having used the mails to defraud.

The others indicted were Dewitt C. Raynor, Blaine J. Nichols and Earl H. Truesdell, members of the bankrupt brokerage firm of Raynor, Nichols & Truesdell, C. Peter Owen, office manager for that firm, and John H. and Edward McQuade, brothers, and Francis Quillan, members of the curb brokerage firm of McQuade Brothers.

According to Assistant Federal Attorney McCoy, who presented the cases to the grand jury, the Raynor House had been the largest firms in the consolidated exchange up to the time of its failure for $750,000 in 1922. Gilbough had been floor trader for the firm.

All the members today except Silkworth and Gilbough had previously been indicted on similar charges and are awaiting trial in the federal courts.

It was said that Silkworth, a member of the American Olympic rifle team, would be arraigned tomorrow that he may arrange to sail for France to question the matter for the Olympic competition.

Mr. McCoy charged that the Raynor firm shortly before its bankruptcy had buckled between $80 and $90 million of the American Olympic rifle team, would be arraigned tomorrow that he may arrange to sail for France to question the matter for the Olympic competition.

Two Probes of Prohibition Will Be Held This Summer

Senator Couzens Will Convene Revenue Bureau Committee After Political Conventions Meet.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Two prohibition investigations of vastly different character are to be conducted this summer by committees of congress.

Back from a prolonged illness Senator Couzens, of Michigan, who started the much debated inquiry into the internal revenue bureau, announced today he planned to ask the senate to convene a committee to convene again after the political convention, employ able counsel, and go to the bottom of conditions in both the income and prohibition units.

Two hours earlier, the once powerful house committee on alcoholic liquors traffic held its first meeting in five years and instructed a sub-committee, of which the outspoken element will have no representation, to report to the next congress on a wide variety of prohibition topics.

Furnish Political Fireworks. The senate committee voted some weeks ago to make Francis J. Heney, chairman of the committee, responsible for the collection of fireworks. It is planned to summon responsible prohibition officials and gather from many sources a mass of evidence relative to the alleged maladministration of the dry laws.

On the house side the inquiry will be under the direction of some of the leading drys of congress, who hold places on the sub-committee and who announced today there was no intention to summon witnesses or conduct any public hearing in the senate.

It was said, however, that the senate committee would be gathered largely from official reports and a personal correspondence passing through enforcement agents and their chiefs.

Although the senate revenue bureau has held no meeting in several years, the committee is expected to take it for granted the majority of the members would favor his plan for continuing the inquiry after the political conventions. The committee chairman, Senator Couzens, a Republican, Indiana, some time ago introduced a resolution to declare the investigation at an end, but he decided not to ask for a vote on it after it had become apparent that a majority of the senate stood with Senator Couzens in his desire to press the inquiry.

Heney's Fee Source Doubtful. The Michigan senator, at first agreed to pay Mr. Heney, fee as a consultant out of his own pocket, but after a protest by Secretary Mellon and a message of admonition from President Coolidge, it is ascertained that he will not be employed under a grant of funds.

Mr. Couzens would not say today that the committee "should engage an attorney to thoroughly sift and analyze the testimony already presented to the committee and to individual members."

Much information has been sent to the committee out of his own pocket, but he has withheld it pending a formal hearing.

Further, "to injure anyone in the treasury department unless they are guilty of misconduct."

Three booze runners narrowly escaped death or serious injury Wednesday morning when they leaped from their speeding automobile on a 40-foot embankment at Kennedy and Lambert streets. The car was smashed to bits, but the men, apparently unhurt, escaped police officers who were chasing them at the time of the accident.

Superintendent Police R. C. Tugle took up the chase of the liquor car which became suspicious of the driver's actions. As the car whirled around a corner at Kennedy and Lambert streets, the driver lost control and the car slipped to the embankment. The wrecked machine was found to be loaded with gallon cans of whisky.

Information that some of the bootleggers previously had cached some of the whisky at the home of L. J. Farlow, 10 1/2 street, officers searched the house, but were unable to find any trace of liquor. However, Farlow was arrested on charge of disorderly conduct, following a fight with one of the officers.

ACTORS PEACE PACT IS UPHOLD BY COURT

New York, May 28.—The insurance members of the Producing Managers' association, organized as the Managers' Protective association, today defeated an effort of the older organization to enjoin the contract in which they recently signed a separate peace pact with the Actors' Equity association. Supreme Court Justice McCook, denied the Producing Managers' body's application for the injunction.

The contract which the resisting managers sought to enjoin provided that 80 per cent of each contract must be made up of equity members. Justice McCook held that this stipulation was neither illegal nor unreasonable. He explained that to grant the injunction would "seriously injure both the defendant association and their members and a host of individuals outside either body dependent upon the theater for their living."

The Managers' Protective association consists of producers of more than 90 per cent of current Broadway productions who recently broke away from the Producing Managers' association when that body refused to accept the equity demands. Equity actors said today that there would be an actors' strike June 1 against the producers not affiliated with the new body unless they signed the new agreement in the meantime.

GROCEER IS ICED AS BANDITS LOOT REGISTER OF $75

After locking J. Mazes, proprietor of a grocery store at 378 Woodward avenue, in the ice box of the store, three masked negro bandits early Wednesday morning rifled the cash register of $75, frightened away a customer who reached the door as they emerged and escaped.

The bandits, it is believed, are the same who perpetrated last week a similar robbery at the store of W. M. Krieger, 179 Irving street, who also was forced into the ice box while the store was looted.

Tift County Planters Ship Tomato, Potato Plants By Thousands

Tifton, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—Tomato and potato plant shipments from Tift county have gotten well under way and are moving rapidly. The shipments by express from Tifton amount to about 1,100 crates, containing from 1,250 to 1,500 plants each, the total plants shipped being over 1,500,000.

Last week they moved at the rate of 500,000 and with fair weather the shipments this week will run well over a million a day. A freeze in the middle western states had killed most of the plants that had been set out there and growers expect the demand to exceed the supply for the next two weeks.

A majority of the plants shipped were to the middle west. The canning companies of the middle west who in turn sell them to the farmers to grow the tomatoes on contract.

In and Out

BY EDGAR FRANKLIN

"If I were you, Fry, I should tell the truth, and let me help you. You know, and I know, that the boy never left this apartment. Well?"

"Well?" snapped Anthony.

"And you know and I know what remains of him is still here, and—"

"Are you accusing me of murder?" Anthony demanded savagely.

"I have been doing that for some time."

"Hitchin, you're the most utter ass that ever breathed!"

"Doubtless, but at the same time murder is murder, and murder will out. Fry, the extraordinary crime student said steadily as he arose: 'Now hear me quietly. I shall do nothing—understand, nothing—until afternoon, unless circumstances render action imperative. I want to help you, to come to the unfortunate end quietly if nothing else. I shall be in my apartment all morning. Think it over. Think it over with Bolter. Then, when you have decided that you need help, come and see me.'"

Then Mr. Hitchin, courageously turning his back upon the pair, moved out of the flat leaving Johnson Bolter and his oldest friend in a state of partial paralysis.

"Have you decided how to get me out of here?"

"I have decided to get me out of here," Anthony said brightly, entering without a sound.

Anthony stayed the bitter words that were in his very throat.

"We have been accused of murdering David Prentiss," he said.

"Really?"

"Very really indeed!"

"Isn't that perfectly ridiculous?"

"It's a scream," said Johnson Bolter. "About the time we both get pinched it may be up to you to tell the truth?"

"Just that!"

"I'll never do it!" the girl cried passionately. "Not even to give both of you I'm not here through any fault of my own, and—why, a man who could suggest such a thing!"

Se said no more. Lipe parted, and eyes, all in an instant, thoroughly horrified, she stood and listened; and from the door of Anthony's apartment a noisy thumping sounded once more and a voice said:

"Hurry up! Open that door!"

Wilkins, muttering as he fumbled at the latch, was mentioning Mr. Vining's name and bidding him be patient for an instant—and Mary, with a little scream, had made another of her projectile disappearances down the corridor—and into the room came Robert Vining!

He was far from being the same collected young man. His whole person seemed to have been towed by some overwhelming excitement. His eyes belonged in the head of a madman, and his hands waved irresponsibly as he rushed at Anthony Fry and clutched his coat and panted:

"Fry! You'll help me to help me!"

"Help you—how?"

"You know more people than I— you know people everywhere. Anthony! You'll have to help by calling them up and having them call up their friends, you know. That—that may do some good. I—I don't know! I don't know what I'm talking about, Anthony! I feel as if I'd gone crazy!"

"You act very much that way," Anthony said quietly. "What's wrong?"

Robert Vining gazed at him and then laughed quite insanely.

"Wrong!" he shouted. "Wrong! Mary's disappeared!"

"You don't know Mary—no, of course not!" young Mr. Vining rushed on. "She—she's the girl I'm going to marry. Anthony, I'm engaged to her, although I haven't been announced yet. I've been engaged for a week now, and we—great Heaven! I can't think. She's gone. She's just gone. Mary! Why, my little Mary out alone at night—"

"She's just twenty, Anthony—a delicate, beautiful girl like that disappearing from the world, beautiful, the happiest home in all New York! Why, from the day she was born, Dalton never spared a penny to—"

"Ah? What's Dalton?" Anthony asked suddenly.

"What? Theodore Dalton, of course. He's her father—Dalton, the patent medicine man, Anthony. You must have met him? You know Theodore Dalton?"

Curiously, fortunately enough, sheer nervous tension jerked him away from Anthony Fry just then and set him to pacing the floor, a man distracted, a man unseeing, a man who reeked of nothing on earth beyond his terrible and immediate grief.

And this was very well indeed, for Anthony was certainly making himself conspicuous!

Anthony took three backward steps and looked at the unconscious Robert much as if the young man had branded himself a leper—and then, one hand on his head, Anthony staggered into the corridor, down to the window-seat, where he collapsed much as if the bones had been whisked from his long, slender legs!

Here Johnson Bolter, following, found him five seconds later. Mr. Bolter, who was beginning to feel downright peculiar himself, shook his old friend with no gentle hand as he demanded:

"What is it now? What in blazes got you that time, Anthony? Are you going to have a fit?"

"Johnson," Anthony Fry said pitifully. "I've kidnapped the daughter of the only man in the world who can ruin me, and now he'll do it!"

It was plain enough to Johnson Bolter. Anthony, poor devil, was raving. Well, Dalton came to the office once. He wanted to buy us out, and I wouldn't do it—it's partly my fault, and partly because he didn't want to pay enough. Then he tried his usual tactics of threatening to drive Imperial off the market, and I sat down and pointed out to him just what it would cost and what it would take him. He's a hard devil, Johnson, and he was pretty near like kangaroo when he was angry. But he saw the reason in what I told him."

"Go on," said Johnson Bolter.

"We parted on rather curious terms," gazed Anthony. "One might call it an armed truce, I suppose. He seemed to be willing to let matters rest as they were, and he has done just that ever since; but he told me in so many words that if ever I tried to break into his particular markets, if ever, for any cause, I offended him in any way, he'd sail in and advertise me out of business."

"Can he do it?"

"He can do it," Anthony said, with pained conviction. "He can do it, because he's able to spend a million where I spend ten thousand and once he starts Fry's Imperial Liniment as he did as Julius Caesar. And when it comes to this thing, I think, I shut his teeth on the end of the sentence, Wilkins, white and distressed, was coming down the corridor with what looked rather like kangaroo leaped. He came to David's door and stopped, turning the knob. He entered—and immediately he left the room again, and he left the door open."

"She wishes to see you again, sir?"

Anthony jerked obediently to his feet and laid a cold hand on Johnson Bolter's.

"Get up there and keep Vining busy," he said. "That's all. Hurry!"

Johnson Bolter shuffled back to the living room, where the unfortunate Robert sat on the sofa and wrung his hands. Anthony, waiting tremulously until he heard both their voices, hurried into Mary's room.

He went? Is he gone? Mary cried.

"He will—go, shortly," Anthony said thickly. "You—you are Theodore Dalton's daughter!"

"So you've discovered that?"

"He—in a business way—" Anthony muttered vaguely.

"What was my reason for coming here?" Mary said, cheerfully enough. "I've heard him speak of you—oh, no, not very flatteringly; I don't think he likes you. I've heard him say that some day he'd wreck you, when she was ready; and I was very curious indeed to see what sort of man you were and whether you were nice enough to plead for me, if ever started. I don't like dad to wreck people."

Anthony nodded.

And from the corridor came: "She's gone, Bolter! Johnson, she's gone!"

And steps came in their direction, too, and while Mary Dalton turned to flame, Anthony Fry turned to ice! He was coming and coming steadily, and the door was open fully two inches. He was absent of them now, a faithful Johnson Bolter apparently was with him, for they heard—

"Well, I wouldn't go wandering around like that, old man. Come back and sit down and we'll talk it over."

The steps ceased. Through ten terrible seconds Anthony Fry and lovely Mary stood listening to the panting of the afflicted youth.

"My God, Johnson!" he cried wildly. "I—I want to look over the whole world at once for her! I want to look into every room in New York! I want to look into every room in this place and then tear out and look—"

"Yes, but you couldn't do that," Johnson Bolter assured him soothingly.

"Now, cut out the madhouse talk, old man, and come back. Have one of Anthony's good, strong cigars and I'll dig out that brandy he keeps for his best friends. Don't go nosing around these rooms!" said Johnson Bolter, and simultaneously they caught the shiver in his voice and saw the door move as Vining's hand landed on the knob. "Just control yourself and come back."

Robert Vining laughed hideously and helplessly.

"I suppose I'm making an ass of myself!" said his weak voice. "I can't help it! On my soul, I can't help it. Give me a shot of the brandy, though, and maybe I'll steady a bit!"

Something like one hundred years passed; then the hand slid from the door and they could hear Johnson Bolter leading the sufferer gently away from the shock of his whole lifetime. Mary, her eyes closed for a moment, gripped herself and spoke very softly:

"Mr. Fry, if—if you don't get that boy out of here and then find a way of sending me home—if you don't do it instantly, I'm going out there to Bob and tell him that you brought me here and kept me here all night against my will! After that, whatever happens—well, it is just happen!"

Life returned to Anthony's frozen legs.

"I will go!" he managed to say, and he went.

The brandy was already within Robert Vining, yet it seemed to have made small difference in his condition. Mentally, he was not more than half himself. Anthony Fry, therefore, grew very firm and very stern, pleasantly certain that Robert was paying no heed to his pallor or the uncontrollable shake that had come to his hands.

"If the girl has really disappeared," he said steadily, "your part is not to be sitting here and whining for help, Robert. Why don't you get out and bustle and see if you can't get track of her. Have you gone to all her friends?"

Robert Vining, rising, shook himself together.

"You're right, Anthony," he said. "I'm an ass; I've lost my head completely this last hour. I—I caught it from her father. I think; the man's going about like an infuriated bull, swearing to kill everybody in the world if Mary isn't returned and but you're right, old chap. Thank you for steadying me."

He tried to smile at them—and he fled. This time it was Johnson Bolter, who turned work at his going. Mr. Bolter, smiling at his old friend in a sickly, greenish way, dropped into a chair and mopped his forehead.

"I was never so scared as that in all my life!" he said. "The idea of seeing you shot down there, Gad! I could picture the—"

"Well? What now?" Mary herself

asked very crisply, appearing in her disconcerting and silent fashion.

Johnson Bolter smiled feebly.

"Have you settled it yet?" she snapped.

"The—er—means of getting you out?"

"Is there anything more important?"

"Al—decidedly not," Anthony said wearily. "Several times, I think, we've attempted a council of war, and we may as well try it again. There will be no interruptions this time, I think, and if we all put our minds to it—"

That was all. As on several other similar occasions, he halted because of sounds from the doorway. It seemed to Johnson, indeed, that he had heard Wilkins muttering at the telephone a moment ago, too; and now the faithful one was at the door and working over the latch.

"That's a woman's voice!" Mary whispered.

And she looked wildly about, and, since there was no hope of escape unseen by the corridor, her eyes fell upon the open door of Johnson Bolter's room. Mary, with a bound that would have done credit to a young deer, was across the room, and the door clicked behind her just as Wilkins appeared to announce:

"A lady, sir, who—"

Then the lady had passed him moving with a speed almost equal to Mary's own—a lovely lady, indeed, with great, flashing black eyes and black hair—a lady all eye and spirit, her face suffused just now with a great joy. The spell on Johnson Bolter broke and his soul found vent in one great, glad cry of:

"Bee!"

"That's a woman's voice!" Mary whispered.

And she looked wildly about, and, since there was no hope of escape unseen by the corridor, her eyes fell upon the open door of Johnson Bolter's room. Mary, with a bound that would have done credit to a young deer, was across the room, and the door clicked behind her just as Wilkins appeared to announce:

"A lady, sir, who—"

Then the lady had passed him moving with a speed almost equal to Mary's own—a lovely lady, indeed, with great, flashing black eyes and black hair—a lady all eye and spirit, her face suffused just now with a great joy. The spell on Johnson Bolter broke and his soul found vent in one great, glad cry of:

asked very crisply, appearing in her disconcerting and silent fashion.

Johnson Bolter smiled feebly.

"Have you settled it yet?" she snapped.

"The—er—means of getting you out?"

"Is there anything more important?"

"Al—decidedly not," Anthony said wearily. "Several times, I think, we've attempted a council of war, and we may as well try it again. There will be no interruptions this time, I think, and if we all put our minds to it—"

That was all. As on several other similar occasions, he halted because of sounds from the doorway. It seemed to Johnson, indeed, that he had heard Wilkins muttering at the telephone a moment ago, too; and now the faithful one was at the door and

Miss Robinson and Miss Mellon Honored at Dinner at Club

Miss Jennie Robinson and her attractive guest, Miss Mary Ellen Mellon, of Oklahoma City, Okla., were guests of honor at the elegantly appointed dinner given by Robert F. Maddox, Jr., at the Piedmont Driving club, sharing honors with a group of New York friends of the host.

The table was overlaid with a lace cloth and gracing the center was a basket holding vari-colored poppies, and the place cards were hand-painted in these lovely flowers. Pink unshaded candles were placed in silver candlesticks and encircled the central decoration.

Voters' League Announces Benefit.

The plans for the League of Women Voters' benefit card party to be held at the Hotel Baltimore June 11 at 8 o'clock are rapidly going forward. There have been reservations made already for nearly 400 tables, and those desiring to make reservations are urged to do so as early as possible by calling Mrs. Carlotta Brooks, Ivy 2587-W.

Any members of the league desiring tickets to sell may get them from headquarters, 504 Connally building, or from the ward leaders, who are as follows: Second ward, Mrs. Virginia Henderson, Main 0412-W; Third ward, Mrs. George Holder, Main 3080; Fourth ward, Mrs. J. N. McDonald, Ivy 2554-W; Sixth ward, Mrs. M. D. Farnham, Hemlock 2221; Seventh ward, Mrs. Berry Hinton, West 9086-J; Eighth ward, Mrs. Paul LaPlant, Hemlock 6651-W; Ninth ward, Mrs. C. A. McGinnis, Hemlock 5568; Tenth ward, Mrs. Maginnis, West 2342; and the Eleventh ward, Miss Katherine Koch, Main 5137-W.

There will be over 200 tables placed in the ball room of the Baltimore hotel for the league's card party. Prizes will be furnished for each table, and other prizes will be given away. The tickets are 50 cents each or $2 a table.

Fee System Stressed.

The League of Women Voters gave a successful luncheon at Peaco's cafe Tuesday noon, the speakers being the representatives from DeKalb and Fulton counties. Mrs. Newton C. Wing, Atlanta chairman of the National Better Homes of America, made a short talk thanking the league for the way their representatives were hostesses at house No. 1, on Virginia avenue, during Better Homes week here.

E. J. Steele was the first of the representatives to speak. He gave a short outline of his bill for abolishing the fee system which he presented to the house the summer of 1923, and of Stephen Peaco's bill, which was presented to the legislature the same summer.

Mr. Steele said: "The principle of the two bills is the same; they are Covers were placed for Miss Mellon, Miss Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Orme Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Lance, of Chicago; Miss Nell Sims, of Douglas, Pa.; F. I. Ferguson, of New York; Baxter Maddox, William Dickey, Newton McEachern and Esmond Brady.

Miss Mellon has visited in Atlanta as the guest of Miss Robinson and her sister, Mrs. Head, formerly Miss Emily Robinson, and has a wide circle of friends. She will be entertained at a series of parties during her visit.

different only in detail. Both bills are constitutional amendments. However, the only real way for this bill to be passed is to let the people vote on it, then everybody will be satisfied and it will be a definitely settled question. Every county has its own particular situation to handle, and should settle this question for itself. No general bill can be passed, only a constitutional amendment."

Mr. C. N. Guess and Mr. Albert Woodliff were next in turn. They both heartily endorsed Mr. Steele's ideas on what could be and should be done in regard to abolishing the fee system, and promised to work to that end.

Miss Bessie Kempton was the only representative from Fulton county. She drew a plan whereby this bill could be passed.

Miss Kempton said: "This is a very complex proposition and of vital importance to good government. Bringing a woman and having a mind of my own, however, I do not entirely agree with the gentlemen who have spoken before me. In the first place, it would take until 1929 for a constitutional amendment that would abolish the fee system to go into effect. Each county would have to put in a local bill and there are many other details too numerous to go into. Here is a plan that can be done and it won't take a constitutional amendment. When a county officer has received $10,000 all that he takes in thereafter is prorated between himself and the county. This plan is a fair plan for all counties."

Mrs. M. L. Yergen, of Rome, Ga., was the league's out-of-town guest.

SHERIFF CHANGES THEORY IN DEATH OF EX-GEORGIAN

Gastonia, N. C., May 28.—Authorities tonight abandoned their theory that shots fired from the front door of his one-room cabin had killed J. H. Fletcher, carpenter, whose body was found in the cabin six miles from here Tuesday afternoon, grasping a pistol with three cartridges exploded.

Sheriff Rhyme, who visited the scene today for a closer examination, stated the load from a shotgun which killed the man had been fired through a hole in the back door of the cabin, and he asserted this hole was marked with powder burns.

No clues were found today to indicate who killed Fletcher. Police officials still were proceeding on the theory that robbery was the motive for the crime and that he made a stout defense before succumbing to the shotgun wounds. Though Fletcher was reputed to keep a considerable amount of cash in his cabin, only $50 was found when the body was discovered.

Tonight the body was still at a local undertaking establishment, pending definite word from relatives. Telegrams to Forsyth and Macon, Ga., today remained unanswered, though Fletcher, it was asserted, often had mentioned a mother and other relatives residing near the two cities.

BRITISH STEAMSHIP AND TANKER COLLIDE

Norfolk, Va., May 28.—The coast guard cutter Manning was dispatched to the assistance of the British steamship Manchurian Prince upon receipt of distress calls today stating that she collided at sea last night with the American tanker Hoxbar.

The Manchurian Prince and the Hoxbar are slowly proceeding into Hampton Roads, the Hoxbar, which coast guard officials understand to be the less seriously damaged, being assisted by the steamship Carabelle, which picked up the distress calls of the two vessels shortly after the crash.

The Manchurian Prince, the message to coast guard headquarters stated, had her bow stove in. The Hoxbar was damaged in forepeak and foreholds.

No details of the cause of the accident, which occurred about 80 miles south-southeast of Cape Henry, were contained in the message.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Leftover Tip.
Leftover string beans are delicious served in a cream sauce, flavored with a little lemon juice and paprika.

A Different Preparation.
Try dipping hamburger cakes in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper to remove grease and serve with tomato sauce.

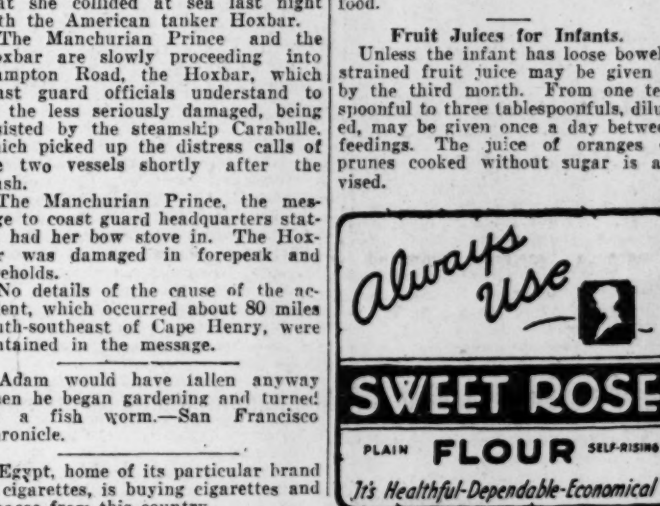

The Neglected Coffee Pot.
Boil the discolored coffee pot for a short time in a strong solution of borax and then wash in the usual manner. It will come from its bath beautifully white.

Beware of Soggy Food.
Be sure the fat for frying is very hot before immersing the food. Otherwise the food will take up the grease and be heavy and indigestible. Wait until a thin brown smoke appears above the pan before putting in the food.

Fruit Juices for Infants.
Strained fruit juice may be given by the third month. From one teaspoonful to three tablespoonfuls, diluted, may be given once a day between feedings. The juice of oranges or prunes cooked without sugar is advised.

The West End Woman's club will erect a handsome clubhouse at a cost of $25,000 within the next year, according to definite plans which were submitted and drafted at the first meeting held under the new administration, at the women's Gordon street clubrooms, at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Brogden announced that the building of the clubhouse will be the outstanding undertaking of the new administration and will be built on Cascade avenue on the lots donated to the West End Woman's club by Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Ragdale.

Mrs. Brogden announced a partial list of the chairmen of committees to serve under her for the coming year. The vacancies were to be filled and the appointments confirmed by the club at the meeting Wednesday.

DR. JONES ADDRESSES Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

Blue Ridge, N. C., May 28.—A report of the commission on "the administration and the program of the association in the town and country fields," by Perley A. Foster, chairman, will feature tomorrow morning's session of the conference of the employed officers of the Y. M. C. A., which opened here Tuesday night.

Today's morning session was devoted to the address of Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, Atlanta, on "The Lord's Prayer," and dealing with the question as to who should address the Christ as "Our Father, which art in Heaven." Dr. Jones is known as the "conference pastor" for this gathering and will speak Thursday and Friday.

This afternoon's session was taken up with meetings of the employed officers' organizations. Special conference of boys' work secretaries, transportation executives and other bodies which together make up the larger group of general officers held separate meetings.

Tomorrow afternoon the delegates will visit Mount Mitchell, Chimney Rock and other places of interest and will close their conference with a business session Friday at which time Dr. John R. M. Jones, head of the International Y. M. C. A., will deliver the final address.

NATURE'S DANGER SIGNALS
Nervousness, melancholia, backache, headache and pain in the side are all nature's danger signals which indicate some ailment peculiar to a woman. When such warning symptoms appear women may avoid much pain and suffering if they will rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as its tonic, strengthening influence speedily removes the cause and restores the system to a healthy, normal condition.—(adv.)

Child-birth

WHEN the little one arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps longed for. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the greatest remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Harman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 215 E. 12th St., Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.—(adv.)

QUIT HAVING BILIOUS COLIC

Texas Lady Says Her Suffering Was Terrible Until She Began Using Black-Draught.

Naples, Texas.—Mrs. G. W. Carlisle, who resides on Route 3, near here, says: "I used to have very severe spells of bilious colic. My suffering was terrible. I took different remedies; still I would have these spells. I heard of Thedford's Black-Draught and began to use it. After taking it for some time I quit having colic and haven't had a spell in years. It is about the only medicine I ever take. We certainly can recommend it to anyone. I take the dry powder and it keeps my liver in good shape. I have excellent health."

Colic is often due to a torpid condition of the liver. Other disagreeable symptoms of inactive liver are bilious headache, dizziness, indigestion, coated tongue, bitter taste, offensive breath and constipation. Black-Draught acts in a natural way upon the liver, and helps to put it in working order again.

Black-Draught has been successful use for more than eighty years. The benefit they have derived from the use of Black-Draught in the treatment of torpid liver. Black-Draught is free from calomel and harmful drugs, as it is prepared only from powdered medicinal roots and herbs. Remember—It's not Thedford's, it's not Black-Draught liver medicine. Insist upon the genuine!

New President.
Mrs. Brogden, president of the club, is quite a prominent figure in club, religious and educational work. She assumes her office inspired and will work for the growth and progress of West End. She believes that in building the clubhouse, the strength and definite objectives of the club will be the result. She is a daughter of the late Dr. C. B. LaHatte, of Gainesville, Ga., who was one of the leading educators of the state, and 20 years president of the Methodist College for Women in Gainesville.

Other officers of the club include: Mrs. W. T. Moore, first vice president; Mrs. Chester Johnson, second vice president; Mrs. D. P. Harris Amendments Kept in Agriculture Bill by Conferees
Washington, May 28.—The conferees on the agricultural appropriation bill today agreed to several senate amendments of Senator Harris, of Georgia, which insures the additional work for agriculture in the state. Senator Harris was a member of the conference committee from the senate and had splendid support from Representative Gordon Lee, of the seventh Georgia district, one of the house conferees.

For boll weevil investigations and experiments in making cheaper calcium arsenate, $25,000 is provided. This amount is in addition to $25,000 for poison gas experiments and $15,000 for arsenic investigations secured by Senator Harris in other bills. The other items approved are $5,000 for peach, packing and canning experiments; $10,000 for study of storing pecans and syrup in federal ware houses; and $5,000 for additional to baco investigations at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment station, at Tifton. The fund for peach study was urged by the Georgia peach growers' exchange of Macon and Senator Harris conferred with its president, J. L. Benton.

ATTEMPT TO REGULATE CHILD LABOR RAPPED

Atlantic City, May 28.—A series of resolutions condemning the political manipulation of the tariff and the proposed constitutional amendment to enable congress to regulate child labor were adopted by the American Cotton Manufacturers' association today.

Other resolutions flayed wage comparisons of the south and other parts of the country that do not take into consideration wage equivalents as expressed in terms of cost of living; demanded a tax reduction policy that will give relief to the masses; endorsed cooperative handling and marketing of cotton; appealed to the department of commerce to investigate and publish the cost of distribution of cotton merchandise; pledged cooperation with manufacturers who wish to erect textile machinery plants in the south; assailed agitation and artificial stimulus for the movement of northern mills to the south and the bringing into the south of large bodies of outside labor; approved the establishment of textile courses in colleges; suggested development of Muscle Shoals for manufacture of explosives in time of war and fertilizers in time of peace, and petitioned congress to take charge of the fight against the boll weevil.

A higher protective tariff was advocated by both the north and south to safeguard the textile industry in this country. Regulation of child labor should be left with the individual states, the association held.

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

"All's Fair!"

When the guests had gone to the club house, Marjorie remained standing on the porch overlooking the garden and the Sound. It was moonlight and the garden was drenched in silver. When the whirl of the last motor had died in the distance, the stillness was broken only by the faint little creatures of the night world.

She felt suddenly a little lonely, a little forlorn.

Across the rolling green of the golf course, the short cut to the club, the clubhouse blazed into the night. Very faintly she could hear the orchestra.

She too wanted to dance. . . . After awhile, she went back to the deserted drawing room. One by one she turned out all of the lights except the electric candles in the wall brackets until the room was dim and cool and fragrant with the scent of roses that barked the mantels and dropped from low bowls on the tables. Her slim fingers touched a little switch in a Florentine cabinet—and a masquerading victrola began a Viennese air.

She danced. . . . In her white and silver gown, she was like a bit of thistle down blown against the moon. Slim, graceful, thrilling to her fingertips with youth and life, she whirled through the empty room. Her slippered feet barely touched the parquet, her slim white arms curved above her head, her white draperies, shot with silver, caught the rays from the shaded lights, and flared about her, like the gauzy wings to some lovely night moth. She danced until her blond curls shook free of their restraining pins and riotous, gypsy-fashion about her face, until her clear, pulsing lips were parted, curved, seductive.

Not until the last soft note trembled and faded in the air, did she pause, one hand pressed to the soft young breast that rose and fell with quickened breathing. She was an elfin creature, exquisite in her abandon, a strange Marjorie that her family had never seen, would never have suspected.

"Brace!" "Perfection!" the quiet voice of Reed Hollister made her whirl toward the French windows.

"I have never seen anything lovelier on the Metropolitan stage." "Oh!" gasped Marjorie. "You saw you—"

He came into the room, his eyes, with their intent disturbing gaze, holding hers.

"I was an unintentional eye-witness. Please forgive me if I offended you by remaining, but I couldn't tear myself away. You were so exquisite, it was a temptation I couldn't resist. By George, you have talent!"

"Oh, no," Marjorie was recovering from her momentary confusion, "I merely love to dance. I feel music here," her hand touched her heart. "I think there's a strain of gypsy in me somewhere. One of my ancestors must have been a Romany."

A golden gypsy with the face of a Madonna and the feet of a Pierrette," he mused.

Marjorie turned away from him abruptly. Again she was feeling that disturbing fear, that annoying dislike.

"You've not left the club dance, have you?" she inquired pointedly with a chill politeness.

His flashing smile was evidence that he appreciated the hint.

"Only for a moment. Your mother forgot her fan. I volunteered to return for it. I came the short cut across the golf course."

"Jenkins would have come back for it in the car. You shouldn't have troubled."

"Are you going to begrudge me the reward of my gallantry?" he asked smiling. "If I had not come, I should have missed a very beautiful performance."

"Please don't," she bit her lip vexedly. "I can't help but think that you're laughing at me: 'I'll go ask Mathilda about mother's fan.'"

Mathilda was laying out Mrs. Boice-Nevins' negligee for the night. She professed ignorance of the lost fan. Together they searched for it.

"It was the shaded rose one," said Mathilda. "I gave it to her myself when I was helping her into her wrap. Your mother's that careless. Like as not it's still in the car, or that good-for-nothing Jenkins took it to give to one of those flibberty-gibbets he's always running after."

"Oh, well, no matter," shrugged Marjorie. "I dare say mother won't stifle without her fan. I'll go tell Mr. Hollister."

Mathilda's eyes narrowed.

"So it's him that came for it. Hm!"

She stood looking after her young mistress as she sped down the stairs. Hollister lingered, even after Marjorie had informed him of the fulfillment of her search. He seemed to have lost all concern over the elusive fan. He drew Marjorie out into the moon-drenched garden, and leaning carelessly on the fountain edge, watched her while she trailed abstracted fingers in the water, inclining the gold fish to little agitated flurries.

As he talked to her, she almost forgot her fear of him. He seemed so human, so companionable, so sympathetic, not at all the formidable Wall Street financier. For a little while she found herself chatting with him as chummiest as with her father, or Norris, or even the boys.

For a little while, his compelling magnetism was subjugated to her own personal, girlish interest. But only for a little while.

She raised her eyes and encountered that disturbing, arresting gaze, felt the insistent vital something that made the man a power—and fell suddenly shy and silent.

At that moment a motor swept up the drive and stopped beneath the portico. It was the family returning from the club.

Marjorie could scarcely believe that the evening had sped so quickly. Her eye fell on her mother's hand. Mrs. Boice-Nevins was carrying a fan of rose ostrich.

"Why where—" Marjorie was beginning when Reed Hollister's hand fell lightly on her arm. His dark eyes were twinkling with mischief.

"A little subterfuge of mine, as an excuse for returning. Your mother did not lose her fan."

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

TRICKS OF CHIROPODY

Strictly speaking, chiropody does not come under the heading of beauty trades. But most beauty shops rent off a corner for a chiropodist, and certainly well cared for feet have more chances of being beautiful than neglected ones, so it seems quite proper that chiropody and shampooing and complexion building should go on side by side.

That reminds me, however, of a letter from a woman who suffers from a very bad corn. Every month she has to take to a chiropodist, who charges $2 to take out the corn, which promptly returns. She wanted to know what clear liquid he used that softened the skin, so that the corn knife he could take out the ugly calloused part.

I fancy he used a strong solution of oxalic acid. Similar solutions are on sale among the manicure implements as cuticle solvents. The acid bleaches and softens the skin, making the dead epidermis easily removable. If my correspondent wants to purchase cuticle solvent, there are many good makes, and after soaking the feet first in soapy hot water and cutting off as much of the top of the corn as possible with a corn knife, she can herself put on the solvent with a bit of cotton, letting it soak in a few minutes.

Then she should use the chiropodist's apparently neglects, the one thing that will help prevent a new corn forming. These solvents are very drying, they bring on a new corn quickly, unless the skin is washed well with hot water, and the corn rubbed thoroughly with oil or petroleum jelly. After scrubbing, it should be painted with collodion to heal and to soothe it. A bit of felt bound on will keep the shoe from rubbing.

C. M. A.: X. Y. Z.: Primp!—The constant use of rouge will cause the pores to become coarse. Pimples and sallowness show that your digestive system is out of order, due to a sluggish liver or from poor elimination. At this season of the year, an easy way to overcome such troubles is to change your diet. Eat more of the green vegetables and salads than the heavier foods you have been taking in the cold weather. Dandelion salad amounts to a spring tonic, as the dandelion purifies the blood and improves the action of the liver.

For blackheads, take a full warm bath every day and use the pores of the complexion are relieved this way; and for local treatment use hot wet cloths over the blackheads to open pores, after which either a manicure implement or a good soap and water wash with cream. Make final rinse very cold, or use an ice rub to close pores again.

Tomorrow—The Youthful Old Woman.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Furber in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. Still, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Atlanta Girl Appointed Councilor of Tennessee Camp

Miss Irene Thomas, attractive and talented Atlanta girl, who was recently appointed councilor of Camp Nakanawa for the summer season.

Miss Irene Thomas, popular and attractive Atlanta belle, has recently been appointed councilor for the summer season of the Tennessee Camp, "Nakanawa," in Tennessee. The appointment came through Mrs. Boshie Lindsey Martin, of Nashville, Tenn., who is associate director of the camp. Miss Thomas was one of a large number of applicants for the position and a distinct honor has been given her in being selected.

"Camp Nakanawa" is situated in the Cumberland mountains, 2,250 feet above sea level, near Maryland, Tenn. The camp, consisting of 1,000 acres, is beautifully laid out beneath the rugged Cumberland mountains and fronting a picturesque lake.

Many hours during the day the campers devote to out-of-doors sports offered by this camp, including the following: Horseback riding, tennis, boating, swimming, diving, archery, hiking, baseball, basketball, etc. Expert teachers in the various sports are provided, giving opportunity to the young women to develop themselves physically. During the season, two large pageants are given, with every member of the camp taking part.

While acting as councilor at Camp Nakanawa, Miss Thomas will continue her study of physical culture. She will return to Atlanta in the early fall, where she will be physical director at Washington seminary next winter.

Several hundred school girls, students of the young women of the southeast will attend Camp Nakanawa during the summer months. Among the Atlanta girls who will go to this popular camp are Misses Marion Wolff, Angel Allen, Elizabeth and Anne Spelding, Hortense Adams, Athletes Dickey and Leone Walker.

OFFER TAX REPORT IN PHILLIPS CASE

Washington, May 28.—Income tax returns may be received in evidence in a criminal case when shown to have been properly obtained, Justice Jennings Bailey, presiding at the trial of John L. Phillips, Georgia, and others on charges of conspiracy in surplus government lumber sales, ruled today in the following case.

When the government later attempted the actual introduction of the papers, Attorney Conrad H. Syme, for Charles Phillips, Jr., made an additional objection that the prosecution had not shown that it had complied with the requirements of the law in advance of the inspection of the original returns before securing copies.

The law indicates, it was pointed out, that the attorney general must make written demand of the secretary of the treasury to inspect the income tax return and permission to do so must be granted by the president of the United States. Assistant Attorney General Parker declared the desired proof would be forthcoming. Receipt of the evidence was deferred by the court awaiting such proof.

H. H. Yancey, of Jacksonville, Fla., who was testifying for the government concerning what the prosecution called a "false organization"—the Southern Lumber and Timber company—was subjected to cross-examination by Attorney Charles A. Douglas, of counsel for John L. Phillips. Mr. Yancey had said he knew nothing of the affairs of the company and that it owned no property. Mr. Douglas showed the witness papers bearing the signature of a witness connected with the company and offered records of meetings in which Yancey appeared to have been present and to have offered motions and resolutions including one for the company to purchase the business of John L. Phillips & Company valued at $110,000, at Kissimmee, Fla. Yancey admitted the signature of a witness connected with the company but asserted strenuously that he never presented the resolutions recited and had attended no meetings of the corporations.

Successful Organization of First-Grade Teachers.

Believing that the work of the first-grade teacher is of supreme importance in adjusting children early and happily to their educational environment, initiating good school habits and favorable emotional attitudes, and giving the mind its "set" toward eager, confident activity and sustained industry, the teachers of the first-grade schools of Worcester, Mass., organized the First Grade club in September, 1922.

During the year 1922-23 the club formed a class for study of special psychological problems in first-grade teaching. In 1923-24 the main task was the educational week demonstration. Numerous school affairs, spring and fall outings, teas, and Philanthropy helped to integrate the club. Its main purpose, however, has been to keep before the public the needs and opportunities of this important period.—School Life.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO PROTECT SALMON

Washington, May 28.—Without a record vote the senate today passed the house bill giving the secretary of commerce authority to establish closed areas in Alaskan fishing waters and to enforce other measures designed to conserve the industry.

The only change made in the senate was to eliminate the section which would have prohibited use of traps and poisons in these waters.

Passage of the bill was preceded by a sharp debate in which Senator King, democrat, Utah, renewed his charge that Secretary Hoover had "played into the hands of the salmon catching monopolists" by including President Harding to set aside certain fishing reserves in Alaskan waters and awarding exclusive privileges for these waters.

Senator Fess vigorously defended Secretary Hoover, declaring the charges against him were either based on misinformation or on the desires of interested parties. "There was a decrease of 24 per cent between 1922 and 1923 in the pack by big packers," he declared, against 16 per cent decrease in the output of small packers, "which would indicate partiality to the small operator, rather than to the monopoly, as has been charged."

Dante wrote parts of the "Divine Comedy" with a map spread out before him. So think scholars who have found brief descriptions of regions in that great poem extremely incisive and accurate. Certain passages in the "De Vulgari Eloquentia," a work in which the great poet lays down the rules of poetic composition, could hardly have been written without reference to a map. Though Dante wrote no treatise devoted specifically to geography, he had a clear understanding of the relative positions of places in Italy and its neighboring lands and the greatest poem is based on the orthodox geographical theories of his time.

Constipation is ruinous to children—keep yours healthy with Kellogg's Bran

Constipation undermines a child's health. It saps his energy and makes him listless. It can lead to more than 40 other serious diseases. Mothers should take immediate steps to remove, safely and surely, the dangerous poisons from his system.

Kellogg's Bran—because it is ALL bran—brings permanent relief. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is universally recommended by doctors. It sweeps and cleans and purifies them. It makes them function naturally and regularly. It allows you to discontinue forever the use of harmful, habit-forming drugs and pills.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is a delightful surprise to the taste—particularly if one has tried ordinary unpalatable bran. Kellogg's Bran has a delicious, crisp, nut-like flavor—an exclusive flavor. It is most enjoyable with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Try it in bread, muffins, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Kellogg's Bran is made at Battle Creek and sold at all grocers. It is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs. Ask for it at your restaurant.

A DAINTY FROCK FOR A LITTLE MISS

4444. Grace and attractive lines are here portrayed. This is a good style for linen, jersey cloth, silk, or voile.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 1 7-8 yard of 36-inch material. A pleasing development would be mustard-colored jersey cloth with embroidery in green yarn. Or white linen or crepe with cross-stitching in blue.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

During the first quarter of 1924 there was a decided and noticeable gain in prosperity in Lower California, due to the harvesting of one of the largest as well as the most successful cotton crops produced by that region.

Approximately 85,000 standard bales were produced in the last season, or about 35,000 above the production of a year ago, while indications are that the next year's crop will also be large.
